

The Wheater Sound Academy presents The WSA Sound Healing Course

A unique opportunity to study and qualify as a Sound Therapist with Tim Wheater, one of the world's foremost experts in the field.

Sound is a profound expression of communication that can go beyond mere entertainment to play a calming transformative role within the individual and society. Now in its third year, the WSA presents a series of four separate weekends which allow you to discover how a few select simple instruments can bring about a surprisingly deep therapeutic experience, healing and soothing the mind, body and spirit.

You will have the theory of this fascinating subject easily explained, with particular emphasis being put on to the fully supervised practical side of the course, thus gaining experience of it first hand in a safe and supportive environment. Along with the qualification 'Dip. WSA', this course gives you the simple calming 'tools' to take with you to not only integrate into your everyday life but also your professional healing practice. Past graduates have taken this knowledge into a varied range of environments, including working with animals, private practice, hospice work, and also within the prison service.

Tim Wheater has over 30 years of experience in the field of sound therapy and an eminent career that has garnered critical acclaim for both his inspired recordings and extraordinary ability to give audiences space and courage to change their lives through the medium of music and sound.

Through his unsurpassed range of study and personal experience he has honed a simple yet profound approach to the topic which makes it both informative and fun for novices and professional therapists alike.

The WSA Diploma weekends take place right across the UK in variety of locations. This is a wonderful opportunity to enhance both your own healing abilities and your sense of purpose within your life's path.
